LMT — Current period: 2025-12-31 | Prior period: 2024-12-31

Peer figures use each company's latest annual filing with prominent disclosure that fiscal periods can differ across peers.

What stands out

RTX does not show one clear numerical advantage over the rest of the group, so the comparison depends more on the balance among growth, margins, leverage, and cash generation than on any one ratio.

For LMT, the most favorable feature in the current figures is straightforward: ROE of 76.9% points to very strong earnings generation relative to book equity. That picture sits alongside free cash flow of $6.91B and debt-to-equity of 3.41x, which helps show how profitability is balanced against financing risk.

Watch items

The risk discussion is limited to what each annual filing supports directly, and missing peer metrics are left blank rather than forced into a misleading side-by-side comparison.

RTX does not present one dominant area of financial pressure in the reporting period used here, although that should not be mistaken for a risk-free profile.

Analyst interpretation

All peer figures are drawn from annual filings. Missing metrics remain blank, so the note should be read as a comparison of what each filing supports rather than as a fully normalized screen.

RTX enters the comparison without one overwhelming positive or negative feature, so the overall profile has to be judged by how the main statements fit together.
